Pretty Girl, Held 3 Days by Police, Freed, Case a Mystery

"DOROTHY ARNOLD" IS RELEASED, SUES GREAT NORTHERN; IDENTITY UNKNOWN

Puzzle Begins on Last Trip of Great Northern—Pretty Slip of Femininity Declared By Detectives to Be Smooth "Moll"—Sought Funds of Y. W. C. A., Telling Conflicting Stories—Famous Disappearance Case of Dorothy Arnold of New York Revived—She Does Not Answer Description

"Dorothy Arnold" from Saturday night to 11:30 this morning was held at the city police station.

The name that six years ago was flashed over the world in the great disappearance mystery of the decade and the pretty, brown-eyed girl who disappeared in Honolulu for two weeks at least from the basis of a puzzle that baffled the Y. W. C. A. officials who know part of the story and even the story itself.

The release of the girl this morning followed the arrival of the Great Northern, which brought a detective and a stewardess. They were the first involved in a startling series of incidents moving along just under the surface here for many days past.

The series began on the last trip of the Great Northern, on which the "mystery girl" was a passenger from San Pedro. When the steamer arrived at Hilo she was searched by two stewardesses at the direction of the ship detective.

She was released today because when the Great Northern arrived the stewardess and detective who knew the "ship end" of the complicated and mysterious story, had no more information to offer. Captain of Detectives McDuffie believed they could shed additional light, but they could not.

Attorney George Davis and George S. Curry had already been engaged by the girl. They have been following the series of events and when she was released this morning they were ready to file in the federal court a suit for $50,000 damages, basing the suit on the search of the girl on board the Great Northern.

Briefly, the search was made because the girl was said by a stewardess to have let drop mysterious hints indicating that she was a female crook—one who had just pulled off a big diamond swindle or theft.

The diamonds were not found, the girl was released, came to Honolulu on the Mauna Kea, dropped out of sight for a few days and something more than a week ago applied to the Y. W. C. A. authorities for funds. She was taken in and cared for, but her actions aroused suspicion. Though she posed as a young, wealthy girl, several things they saw made them suspect she was something else, and the in suspicious were conveyed to the detective bureau. Then followed the arrest of the girl, her looking Saturday night and the suit until the Great Northern arrived.

As the girl left the police station and the detectives admit that she is a complete mystery.

GIVEN VARIOUS NAMES IN SHORT TIME

The girl's name is now given as Dawn Moore. She is called Dawn Moore in the local papers filed today. But she gave her name to the Y. W. C. A. authorities as Dorothy Arnold.

She told a stewardess, the stewardess says, that she was the missing Dorothy Arnold of New York, in the search for whom hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent.

She was booked at the police station as Dorothy Arnold. She is said to have received mail from the general delivery window at the postoffice under the name of Dickie Fisher. In her belongings was found a Christmas card signed "Dick" and it is possible this is a friend and she was getting the mail of a friend.

DOES NOT ANSWER DOROTHY ARNOLD'S DESCRIPTION

Dawn Moore—if that is her real name—does not answer the description of Dorothy Arnold. Her appearance is wide of the description under which the daughter of the wealthy New Yorker has been sought in every civilized land by an agonized father and mother.

Dorothy Arnold left her home on December 12, 1910, and was then 26 years old. She had dark-brown hair and grayish-blue eyes, was of stocky build and an athletic young woman. She would be 26 years old now.

The mystery girl here is apparently not more than 23 or 24, if as much, very elegant, with very brown eyes. In many other particulars, some major and some minor, she failed to answer even approximately to the description of Dorothy Arnold.

In the minds of the detectives and the Y. W. C. A. authorities—who several days ago were supplied by the Star-Bulletin with descriptions of Dorothy Arnold—this cannot possibly be the New York girl who in 1910 walked away from her parents' home on East 79th street and vanished so completely that no detective in the world has been able to discover a clue to her whereabouts or her fate.

NOW DENIES SHE CLAIMED TO BE MISS ARNOLD

The ship detective, the stewardess in whom she is alleged to have confided, and the Y. W. C. A. officials all say absolutely that the girl declared more than once that she was Dorothy Arnold. In some cases she did not claim to be "the" Dorothy Arnold. But the stewardess says specifically that the girl told her she was the missing Miss Arnold of New York, whose disappearance caused a country-wide furor.

This morning the Star-Bulletin asked her directly if she is the missing Dorothy Arnold. She said:

"No," and then, apparently changing her mind, added, "You'll have to see my attorney. I shall make no statement." This was in Attorney Curry's office.

She was then told what the stewardess had said and her comment was:

"That stewardess has told about ninety-seven lies about me and she is lying about this if she says I ever told her I was the missing 'Dorothy Arnold'."

And then she added entirely voluntarily:

"Dorothy Arnold has gray-blue eyes. You see mine are dark."

These are some of the puzzling things which have mystified the police.

DECLARES GRAVE INJUSTICE HAS BEEN DONE

Attorney Curry, while admitting that he is puzzled over some of the contradictions in the strange series of events, declares emphatically that one thing is sure—the Great Northern detective and stewardess and the local police have made a great mistake in searching and arresting her, and they have treated her with intolerable injustice.

That the police held her without justification from Saturday night to Tuesday noon in jail; that she was treated as a criminal; that she is perhaps the victim of unfortunate circumstances—these are some of the very strong comments made by her counsel, entirely apart from the filing of the suit.

The case presents a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde aspect. Is the girl the remarkably clever crook, as the police manifestly believe and do not hesitate to hint? Or is she an unfortunate, down on her luck, pursued by unhappy and damning circumstances, perhaps not realizing all that is happening around her? Why the conflicting stories? The various names?

And there are many small evidences on both sides. Backing up their action in holding her, the police have letters written apparently by an experienced crook, referring in the parlance of crookdom to big "jobs" and to a trip to Shanghai to play the races—on the proceeds of these jobs. These letters are held against the girl—either as written by her or as written to her. And her alleged attempt to make a "pal" out of the Great Northern stewardess is declared to be the work of one who must be wily in the ways of getting "easy money."

On the other side—the supposition that she is a victim of circumstances—there is her appearance—slight, almost pitifully drooping, apparently a girl who is going through some horrible happening and scarcely realising it. Her appearance and some of her actions seem inconceivable if she is a crook.

Here in brief is the story of the mystery girl, so far as it is known, for the past 24 days:

She was first noticed by the stewardess when the Great Northern left San Pedro. They got to be friendly, and then the stewardess says, the girl confided that she was the missing Dorothy Arnold of New York, and that she had been in China largely ever since her disappearance.

The Cummins resolution was to devote the sessions of the senate to the peace discussions, to the exclusion of all other business. His motion today was tabled on a motion by Senator Williams, Democrat, the vote being 38 to 30. Senator Martine of New Jersey, Democrat, voted with the Republicans.

U. S. TO PUT FLETCHER ON MEXICAN AFFAIRS
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—Secretary of State Lansing announced today that Henry P. Fletcher, the U. S. emissary to Mexico who will assume ambassadorial powers when full relations are had with the Carranza government, is to organize his embassy staff and send it to Mexico quickly. DR. CARY GRAYSON'S PROMOTION STARTS FIGHT
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—The senate committee on naval affairs today ordered a favorable report on the nomination of Dr. Cary Grayson as rear admiral. A fight on the floor of the house is indicated.

Dr. Grayson, who is the president's physician and golfing companion, was nominated rear admiral on January 18, the promotion taking him from passed assistant naval surgeon, with the rank of lieutenant, to medical director, with the rear-admiral's rank. The promotion put Dr. Grayson ahead of 114 experienced and active naval officers and also gave him a much larger salary. Washington reports since then have indicated that the appointment has stirred up a hornet's nest.

Guardman Goes To Jail As "Slacker"

"As governor of the territory, I was called on to go over the findings of the regimental summary court, and I have approved the findings, which sentenced the national guardman to a fine or two days at hard labor. I approve the action taken and stand with the national guard authorities. That is all I have to say."

National guardmen who absent themselves from drill without proper excuse will find themselves in trouble with the military authorities of the territory and in extreme cases may be given jail sentences for repeated absences without leave. This morning Governor Pinkham, as commander-in-chief of the National Guard of Hawaii, called upon the high sheriff to carry out a court martial sentence of two days' confinement at hard labor in the case of George Keawe, a member of Company A, 1st Hawaiian Infantry, recently convicted of absence without leave on several occasions.

Under present Federal regulations pay of the entire force of national guardmen is dependent on the average attendance at drills of the organization to which they belong, for the half-year period. It is therefore possible for chronic slackers, as they are now termed by the national guard, and habitual absentees, to pull down the attendance of a company to such an extent that no member could receive pay for his services, even though he might have attended every drill. It is to prevent any such injustice from now on that the governor has taken prompt action.

Both territorial and federal laws provide ample means for enforcing attendance, by providing for courts martial and for the execution of proper (Continued on page two)

NEW LIGHT SHINES ON "LEAK," EARLY TIPS FOR BROKERS

Evidence Before Probers Today Shows Big Firms Had Information; Huge Profit Taken

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 30.—New light was shed today on the now-famous "leak" on President Wilson's peace-term note of December 19, 1916, when the secretary of state was going to issue a peace statement was added today before the house rules committee, which is probing the alleged leak.

The note was published on December 21. The information today was given by E. F. Hutton, a well-known broker. It was in the form of a confidential telegram by private wire from Chicago. The telegram read:

"Hear state department going issue statement on economic situation at attempt promote peace. What do you think of this and how are you on stocks?"

To this Hutton's firm replied:

"Our Washington wires have same information as yours. Others have similar. We put it out."

Hutton told the committee that the reference to Washington connections meant F. A. Connelly & Company, one of the partners in this firm being a brother-in-law of President Wilson.

Hutton's firm wired details of the President's coming message to correspondents.

Earlier in the hearing today, Bernard M. Baruch, a prominent broker and heavy speculator, testified that his profits taken during the time of the alleged "leak," between December 10 and December 23, amounted to $475,168. He declared that these large profits were due to foreknowledge in interpreting the speeches of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg at Germany and Premier Lloyd George of Britain, as meaning that peace is coming. Not a single transaction, he declared, was influenced by advanced information that the president was about to despatch a peace note.

He had not received such information, he insisted. As a proof he said he was on the buying side of the market when the news came and he would not have been there had he foreseen the note.

PASSENGERS OF G. N. MISS BOAT AT HILO

Six cabin passengers of the Hill liner Great Northern who missed the boat at Hilo last night, failing to return from the volcano before midnight, the scheduled sailing hour of the liner, are believed to be coming on the Inter-Island steamer Helene, which was due to leave Hilo today and arrive here some time tomorrow.

A wireless from L. H. Kittridge, one of the party, was received by the Great Northern in port today requesting that the baggage in staterooms 100, 161 and 153A be held until the occupants arrive. The liner's berthing list shows the three rooms to have been occupied by R. C. Bourne and W. J. Fleming, Miss Clara Reed and Mrs. A. H. Monroe, and Mr. and Mrs. Kittridge.

WASHINGTON EXPECTS CENTRAL POWERS TO SAY AMERICANS ON ENEMY SHIPS TRAVEL AT PERIL

Rumor Germany is Facing Food Shortage in Coming Spring—Director Batocki Indicates in Speech That Further Care Must Be Used—Naval Battle in Adriatic—Land Fighting Has Few Features Today

(Associated Press Service by Federal Wireless)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—Another drastic step, perhaps in preparation for extension of the submarine campaign, is hinted at in address received here from Europe, it is rumored. A warning to Americans not to take passage on armed enemy ships, and that if such passage is taken, it is at the peril of the passengers, is expected soon from the Central Powers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—It is reported that Great Britain is considering placing heavier armament on her merchant vessels.

(What constitutes a warship under international law is now in controversy between the United States and Germany. Germany holds that any armed vessel, even a merchantman, is a warship and as such can be attacked without warning. The point has never been yielded by the United States, and if the Central Powers send the warning indicated above, it will mean that U. S. citizens are warned off the seas and from vessels in which the United States holds they have a right to travel safe from attack without notification.)

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Jan. 30.—The Berlin Vorwaerts, the radical newspaper, declares that Adolph Batocki, president of the Food Regulation Board, and commonly known as the "food dictator," in a recent speech indicated that the supply of provisions for spring is scanty and will require careful distribution and economical use.

He is quoted as saying that neither potatoes nor turnips must be used as animal fodder, and that there are 2,000,000 tons less wheat and potatoes than last year.
